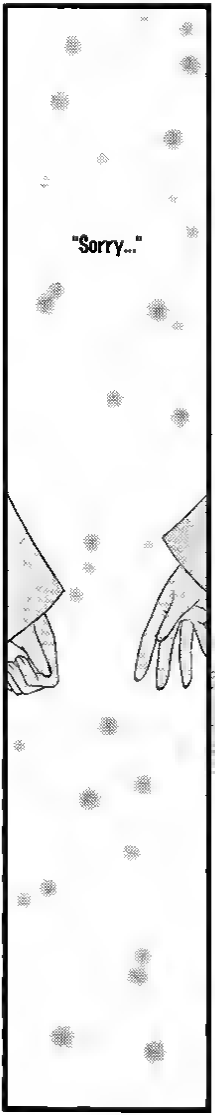
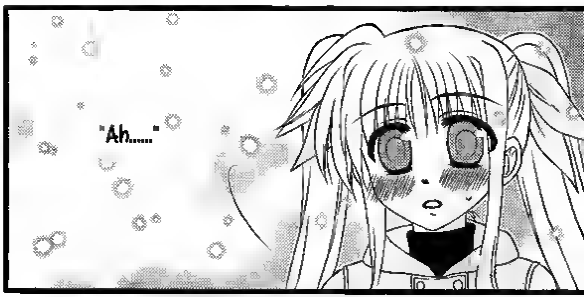
"The next time we meet, it will be the beginning of the year, right?"
"Yeah..."
"I have to go now."
"... Yeah."



"Sorry..."

"Fate... chan?"



"Ah....."

Nanoha, who was staring at the slightly doubtful looking Fate, looked up to the sky with a worried look.

"That's right!"

Turning her smile warm as if to blow away the coldness of the winter from Fate, she then removed the scarf from her neck and put it over Fate's neck softly.

"Since it's an important time, you wouldn't want to catch a cold, right?"
"Ah..."

Pressing her index finger to stop Fate from saying anything, Nanoha turned her back to Fate and moved onto the teleportation port. Then, she turned back to Fate again when she reached the point, and gave Fate a big smile.

"I'll be going now!"
"... Have a safe trip!"

Fate firmly gulped down her tears. The moment that she somehow managed to squeeze her voice out... Nanoha's figure was wrapped in the remarkably bright light and was transferred to some other world.

"I'm sorry... Nanoha."

Standing alone, her murmured words were blown away by the cold wind through the roof, disappearing into the gloomy winter sky.

"Hey you, don't you think you are making her work too much?"
"It feels like Nanoha-chan is being too busy, doesn't it? Does everyone think so?"
"Urgh..."
When Fate returned to her classroom, Arisa, Suzuka, and Hayate were chatting about Nanoha while waiting for Fate. With her high-pitched voice, Arisa's low whisper pierced Fate's heart.

Unintentionally, Fate loosened the scarf that she received from Nanoha and sank her chin down.

"What I am about to say is very bad, but I think I have a good point."
"What do you mean by that?"
"Only Nanoha-chan can work the same amount as a few adults. ."
"What the heck? Isn't it the negligence of those adults!?"
"Um... that is..."
"Moreover, Nanoha has hardly come to school this month. Even today, she barely made it to the closing ceremony and then just left right after that, didn't she?"

Ngh....

At Arisa's words, Fate gritted her teeth inside the scarf and closed her eyes.

It's my fault that Nanoha...

Fate blames herself.

I'm the cause of Nanoha becoming busy lately.
That was what Fate has been thinking.
Fate, who has been preparing for her first Enforcer exam for months, had Lindy and Chrono adjust her amount of work and was in the state of minimal duty in order to have time to study.

"Fate is always diligent. That's why this amount is perfect."
"Fate, you have an important exam to attend. Just leave those things to me!"
"You don't have to worry about anything. We're doing this by our own will."
When I said "I will work the same as usual," everyone in my family said those words.

Nevertheless, the vast amount of missions doesn't decrease at all. The missions that were originally assigned to Fate are now being turned over to Nanoha.

Inside, Fate is overwhelmed with guilty feelings for Nanoha. Tears emerged from the rim of her eyes. They almost spilled from the corner of her eyes. Fate hung her head low in panic and let out rapid breaths.

Somehow, the strange way Fate was acting got noticed. By accident, Suzuka glanced towards Fate, who was still entranced by Arisa's words.
"Arisa-chan, I know you worry about Nanoha-chan, but isn't it time we go? Isn't Sameshima-san waiting for you?"
"Ah, crap! You guys can make it to the Christmas party, right? Then I'm leaving now."
"Roger!"
"... Um..."
Fate replied with a groan.

Fate was thinking.
After school, staying in the classroom where the heater is working, spending time with close friends, going to the Christmas party together... these are unique, valuable times.

Actually, the one who should be here .. the one who should have this daily life... is not me but Nanoha.

While looking up through the window towards the sky that was crowded with heavy grey clouds, Fate sighed.

Because I can't handle both work and studies. . I am making being a burden to Nanoha.

She pulled the scarf around her neck up to the tip of her nose.
She breathed in the faint scent of Nanoha that was left. That felt a little bit bittersweet and sour.

Nanoha... Sorry.

Fate once again has her heart down inside her mind. However, those words won't reach Nanoha. They were only going to be caged in Fate's heart.

"I'm sorry for being late!"

This time, Nanoha's mission was "Hunting".

The hunting target is a magical creature in the form of a huge earthworm. One day, there was a report by the Time-Space Bureau that there seems to be a nest close to the desert village.

This magical creature is a cowardly type, so it doesn't reveal itself when humans are nearby. Moreover, it normally doesn't settle and moves by swimming inside the desert that is burning as hot as hell. Only during the spawning season, it will layseggs deep in the sand. The problem is that it's not just one or two nests, but dozens of them creating a joint together. Those creatures suck the sand through their mouths all at once as if it's food, but they don't digest it. They eject that sand out as dust, creating sandstorms that harm their surroundings.

They rushed to the reported village since the residents' lives were already threatened to begin with. For safety, the extermination must be done immediately.
As things went on, armed troops were formed in a hurry with an emphasis on extermination troops. Also, Nanoha, who has a high capability in fighting, was called to join.

Even if they said it would take three days to wipe them out.

Nanoha subsequently joined with a light heart after the previous mission ended, but... the extermination troops had been forced into an unexpected war of attrition.
The body hidden in the depths of the sandy soil can be exterminated with wide area magic. No matter how much we attack those that come out of the ground though, more still hide themselves underground, resulting in attacks that can't hit them. Attack then attack, again and again, yet they still keep coming, a troublesome enemy indeed.
With that said, several days have passed. Finally, yesterday, the last one was defeated.

Since the trick was understood, now came the all-out sweeping of the creatures. But before that, the extermination troops were allowed to take a break. Using that free time, Nanoha went back to Earth to attend the closing ceremony.

"Oh, Takamachi! We were waiting! Come get ready!"
"Yes, sir!"
She gave a cheerful reply to the operational commander, who went to welcome her back at the teleportation port. Waving the hem of her school-designated coat, she then changed her direction.

Suddenly her vision shook violently.

Huh...
She immediately pushed her hand to the wall and avoided the occurence of an accident.
What the...
She closed her eyes while wondering. Behind her eyelids there were several flickers of lights.
Yeah, I'm alright!
She sensed her whole body, checking if there were any pain, numbness, or other abnormalities.

<Raising Heart, am I alright?>
<Seems like your fatigue is piling up. Just to be sure, sending data to the medical office...>
<No. That's not necessary. I'm okay!>
Nanoha had a little talk with Raising Heart. Acting as if nothing happened, she once again started walking.
There was a reason that Nanoha must work hard even though it was a little unreasonable.

"Hey, are you okay? Don't overwork yourself."
"Yes, I'm alright!"
"If Harlaown's daughter could have come, you could have relaxed a little bit..."

Hearing that line, Nanoha involuntarily clenched her fist while her breath got shortened.

Her reason for working this hard...

That is the existence of Fate

Nanoha's most precious friend has just taken a test that might change her life. It's not time for her to collapse and make her worry. Moreover ..

If I try hard with Fate-chan's portion of work, surely Fate-chan will get closer to passing the exam...

Nanoha relaxed her fist while loosening her breath. Slowly, she turned around as if nothing had happened.

"I'll do my best!"

She replied with a smile

- Side : Lindy Harlaown -

That day, Lindy Harlaown, who was working as the captain of Asura from her usual seat, had been staring at a certain screen. Her face showed no expression as if she was apparently deep in thought.

"Captain, I made some tea— ... Captain, Captain?"
"Ah, Amy-san. Tea? Thank you."
Lindy, who didn't notice that Amy was standing beside her and had been calling her many times, finally responded. Being surprised, she half-rose up from her chair. Then, as if nothing happened, she settled down once again deep into her seat. After that, she put the teacup that was placed in front of the monitor in one of her hands, and then she elegantly put the teacup to her mouth.
"Ah... Captain..."
Amy tried to say something, but it was after the green liquid flowed into Lindy's mouth.

sip ... .

Dozing off, her throat moved, her gaze still fixed to the screen.

"... Is there anything you're worrying about?"
"... Yes, would you look at this?"
Coyly asking Amy, Lindy shifted her position so that she could also see the monitor.
"Umm, this is... someone's medical check result?"
"Yes. It's Nanoha-san's."
"Eh. Nanoha-chan? ... This result... is quite dangerous. It seems like she keeps accumulating her fatigue too much."
Amy roughly read the numerical result and pointed that out.
The numbers are defined in the standard value by the bureau. However, even an adult male rarely reached up to this limit.
"She is obviously overworking, right?"
"The current mission is quite prolonged, isn't it?"
"No one is in a position to control whether or not she continues."
Chrono appeared beside Amy before anyone noticed.
"For the time being, we should consider ways to make her rest."
"Chrono-kun, you've got some plan, right?"
"Ah. Amy, help me search for some document requesting assistance. The reference number is..."

Lindy watched as those two began to interact in small voices from a little distance
I think it's okay to leave it to Chrono...

"Um, Captain?"
Shortly after, a nervous voice was heard. The screen in front of Amy was flashing the word "Complete". The result came out when Lindy was dazing out
"There is a request for increased personnel on Nanoha's mission."
"Moving from the current point to on-site takes about half a day. The schedule will be included within two days until the mission's complete, right?"
"Yes. Thank you very much, you two. It seems like we can intervene without using force. The problem is... nothing, but it can't help that we can do only this."
Lindy stood up straight from the seat and gave the order to the crew inside the bridge
"Informing all of Asura's crew. According to the supporting request No 『132—DF7F399B7』, we are changing the route. Please go back to your stations immediately."
"Yes, sir."
Chrono and Amy, along with the rest of the crew, clanged their heels and saluted

Each of them moved on to their stations inside the lively bridge. One shadow approached the captain's seat. Orange hair. Tufty ears. Arf

"Erm, I know it can't be helped 'coz it was an order, but... it's going to be a bit late until I'm able to go home, right?"
"Yes... when I'm able to return to Earth, it will be next year already."
"I see..."
"I'm also worried about Fate, but... That's right, I have an idea."
Lindy, who also had a dark face like Arf, suddenly let out her cheery voice.
"Eh, wha- what?"
"A New Year's gift... for Fate. In this case, even if she's forced to rest, Nanoha-san will surely agree, fufufu~"
"Uh, umm?"
Glancing backwards at the puzzled Arf, Lindy peeked into the bottom of her teacup of completely lukewarm tea... With a complex expression, she discarded those content.
"... It's bitter."

"A while ago, you didn't put sugar and milk in it~"
Interrupted Amy, who was collecting the document
"You brought back a new cup of tea, right? However, it's kinda rare to hear that Captain forgot to put in sugar."
"Mama-san is also tired? Don't overwork yourself, please "
"Thank you, Amy-san and Arf."

Tired, huh?
Seeing Amy and Arf walking off together, with no one else noticing, she sighed
Fate and Nanoha-san .. both are likely exceeding their limits. . I must hurry and do something.

—. Then, her worry became reality a few months later.
